

Carolyn Sills

& The Poor Man's Roses...

... playing the music of Patsy Cline

Beginning in the fall of 2005, singer Carolyn Sills has revived what country music fans miss most: the true experience of hearing the classic songbook of Patsy Cline performed live with authenticity and passion. Backed by her ace combo of country musicians, Carolyn's performance will transport you back to the late 1950's as she captures Patsy's classic swoon and heart wrenching emotion with every note. From up-tempo honky tonk to cry in your beer ballads, music fans of all ages can't help but enjoy this one of a kind musical experience.

Carolyn Sills has made a name for herself in New York City, performing with Les Paul at The Iridium Jazz Club and selling out BB King's Blues Club in Times Square. She just completed her third tour of Europe and continues to build a loyal following whenever she performs. Her debut solo album is due out in 2009.

"To say that Sills' singing is sultry is an immense understatement... her vocals resonate with a throaty anguish, torch songs sung straight from the heart."

-Michael Dregni, Vintage Guitar Magazine

"Swing meets cool jazz & blues with a touch of country twang... Carolyn's voice soothes your tired soul, leaving you aching for more."

-Go Kat Go Radio, New Haven

"Carolyn Sills and her band, A Poor Man's Roses, dare to emulate the sounds of country music icon Patsy Cline - and they exceed all expectations! Sills uses her own voice, a mix of beauty and soul, with a dose of Cline's inflections to achieve a sincere tribute that is full of confidence."

- Michael Anthony, WHPC 90.3 FM, New York

"Patsy Cline Tribute, done as well as the living can do..." - Rodeo Bar, NYC
